Mission Statement of Sacred Heart Church

"Bringing the Eucharistic Lord to All People by Living the Gospel Message"

A BRIEF HISTORY OF SACRED HEART CATHOLIC CHURCH

Spanish missionaries already served the Nacogdoches area as early as 1716, but the Right Reverend John M. Odin, D.D. established the first parish of Sacred Heart in 1847 with funds raised by Father A. Chanrion. This wooden structure stood for ninety years on North Pecan Street.

Through funds provided by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Phelan and property donated by Mrs. C. C. (Louise) Rhein, Father Francis P. Crane had a new church building constructed on the corner of North Street and Mimms Avenue in April of 1936.

On April 26, 1937, carpenters dismantled the old Sacred Heart Church building on Pecan Street. They transported the lumber ten miles down the Old Lufkin Road to Fern Lake for the construction of St. Ann's Chapel. St. Ann's was completed on June 16, 1937, and it was consecrated by the Most Reverend Christopher E. Byrne. The church building was moved to Center, Texas in 1951, where it served as a chapel until 1983. The old building is now located on the grounds of Sacred Heart in Nacogdoches and has been restored.

In 1985, the Most Reverend Bernard J. Ganter, D.D., approved the purchase of land for the current church building. Under the leadership of Reverend James E. Young, the dream of a new parish church building became a reality. A groundbreaking ceremony was held on March 17, 1991. The building was completed in 1992, and a dedication Mass was held on June 26, 1992. The present Sacred Heart Catholic Church is located at 2508 Appleby Sand Road in Nacogdoches, Texas.

FEBRUARY 5 CONVERSATIONS WITH THE NEW ATHEISTS IV MICHAEL NOVAK

The following objections were raised by Christopher Hitchens in a live debate with Dinesh D'Souza. Most of them were asides, which Dinesh wisely did not allow to distract him in pursuit of larger issues.

But I found them helpful in sorting out my own ideas. (Dinesh is the first debater I have ever heard get the better of Mr. Hitchens.)

Question: The burden of proof is heavier on believers who claim to know that God exists, who in fact know what God wants, and who are friends with the Guy.

Answer: Sorry, Christopher, the burden of discovering the truth about who we are falls equally on all human beings. No one escapes responsibility for deciding about that, and then living accordingly.

As for your second point, knowing what God wants is not too difficult, in a very general sense. The God of Judaism and Christianity asks us to love Him with full integrity: with all one's heart and mind and soul; and to love all humans, His children, with the same love. He also wants us to keep His Commandments.

Knowing what God wants in any particular instance, in this particular exchange or at this particular grave and insistent moment of decision, is by no means as easy. That is why most human beings pray — to compose themselves and to try to be as clear-eyed and self-critical as they can. In this way, they try to perceive and to interpret the subtle signals that are abundant in concrete reality itself. The first principle of morality, Pascal writes, is to think clearly. The second is to act according to what one sees.

As to your third point, the "Guy" has offered His friendship to every woman and man. The burden of deciding whether to accept it or not falls upon each of them. Equally.

Actually, though, the locution "Guy" misdirects the mind toward a human being writ large. "The Source of all existence" is not adequate, either, but it leads us rather deeper than "Guy."

Question: So you think that people believed that killing was ok, and only later came to Sinai and miraculously discovered that killing was not so kosher after all?

Answer: No, nearly all of the Ten Commandments can be, and have been, ferreted out through reason alone. But for good measure, God Himself "put the hay out where the horses can get it" in His engraved Ten Commandments. These ten succinctly summarized the teachings of the philosophers on two stone tablets.

In other words, with Thomas Aquinas and Moses Maimonides, Christians and many Jews reason that the Ten Commandments sum up a considerable proportion of what have been called the laws of human nature, or natural law. That is, the law that can be known through reason alone. And was, in fact, learned through reason alone by many of the ancient pagan philosophers.

Yet it was altogether reasonable and pedagogically sound for the Lord to present these laws of human nature (the laws which best nurture human flourishing) in short mnemonic tables. It was, as the medievals said, not strictly necessary, but fitting (conveniens).

Question: Shia Islam is essentially a parody of Catholic faith.

Answer: So was socialism, so was communism, so is today's environmentalism (complete with an Apocalypse), and so also virtually every other religion that has come after the universal (Catholic) Church, which is not bounded neither by race nor tribe nor region nor nation. Some of these parodies are, of course, abominable.

Still, even these poor and sometimes ugly parodies are a tribute paid to a very successful, long-lasting, continually developing and evolving way of living, which hits each important note buried in human nature itself. But in a unique and not quite imitable way.

Question: All religions secretly want the eschatological end of days. They want this poor and contemptible world to be over. They are waiting for the promise of Heaven.

Answer: But Judaism and Christianity see this good world as coming from the hands and heart of an infinitely good God, and intended for His glory, as a radiance of His own beauty. One finds this in great music, in lyric and playful and grave poetry, in magnificent drama (tragic as well as comedic), and in the nebulae of the universe itself, "the music of the spheres." Oh, and I hope Christopher has noticed that our bodies are the temples of the Holy Spirit, lived in by God, and radiant with His beauty (even in our weakness).

George Carlin's notion that Christianity teaches people "to hate their own bodies" is bizarre. Christianity is the only religion that teaches that our bodies are so beloved by God that they will be raised "on the last day." Teaches, in fact, that soul and body are not two things, but mutually interfused: an inspirited body, an embodied soul. If one thinks of "spirit" as inquiry, wit, the drive to excel, the will to endure and to survive, invigoration, spiritedness — all of which are "embodied" in particular human beings — there is no need to think of "ghosts in a machine."

10 TEMAS DE LOS QUE DEBES HABLAR ANTES DE CASARTE (Segunda Parte)

ANDRÉS D'ANGELO

Sino tu matrimonio podría ser nulo...

Cuando leí que el Papa Francisco dijo «una mayoría de matrimonios sacramentales son nulos» casi me caigo de espaldas al piso. ¡Yo tenía la misma hipótesis desde hace mucho tiempo! Trabajando en consejería familiar, cuando entrevistamos a matrimonios en crisis, y evaluamos cómo y por qué se casaron, descubrimos que muchas veces se tomaron al sacramento como una simple bendición, más como una costumbre social que una realidad sobrenatural. ¡Por eso muchas veces la Gracia Sacramental no actúa! ¡Es sencillamente porque no existe! Ante la enorme cantidad de matrimonios en crisis, tendríamos que preguntarnos si realmente están casados «como Dios Manda». Muchas veces, la respuesta a las crisis está allí, en la falta de comprensión cabal de los efectos del sacramento en los cónyuges y los hijos.

Otro de los problemas generalizados que provocan crisis matrimoniales es el desconocimiento que tienen uno del otro los cónyuges. Se conocen, se enamoran y se casan porque están enamorados. ¡Y cuándo se les pasa el enamoramiento, se quieren «descasar»! No se entienden, las mariposas en el estómago fueron brutalmente digeridas por la rutina y ahora no saben qué hacer con esa relación que no funciona de ningún modo.

Por eso, además de reforzar la catequesis matrimonial previa y posterior al matrimonio, los futuros esposo deberían tener entre sí un diálogo que de algún modo prevenga y minimice el riesgo de estas crisis. Y, ¿qué preguntas deberían hacerse los futuros esposos para que este diálogo rinda frutos? ¿Sobre qué temas deben hablar?

6. ¿Cómo protegeremos a nuestro matrimonio de la infidelidad, la pornografía, etc.?

La castidad conyugal la tenemos que descubrir y cultivar antes del matrimonio. Y hablar de estos temas nos va a ayudar a prevenir y hasta a “blindar” a nuestro futuro matrimonio de estas verdaderas maldiciones modernas, tan frecuentes. Hay que saber que vivimos en una época hipersexualizada, que banaliza al matrimonio y lo ataca con una catarata de pornografía que es prácticamente imposible esquivar. La frecuencia en los Sacramentos y la conversación abierta y confiada en la pareja nos van a ayudar a sortear estos peligros con menos riesgos.

7. ¿Qué hacer con la familia política?

La frase que se repite en la Biblia al menos tres veces (en el Génesis, luego la dice Cristo y la repite Pablo en Efesios) es: “Por eso deja el hombre a su padre y a su madre”. La debida distancia, con el debido respeto de la familia política es la que va a ayudar a cimentar la paz conyugal. Tampoco quiere decir abandonar a los padres. “Ni tan calvo que se le vea el seso ni con tres pelucas”. En el medio está la virtud. Pero antes de casarnos tenemos que tener en claro que la familia política termina tendiendo a ser más política que familia, y si se meten en la intimidad de la pareja, ¡Es para desastre!

8. Y, ¿el tema de las finanzas?

Este tema también es importante hablarlo antes. Se acabaron los fondos “míos” o “tuyos” Ahora sólo existen los “nuestros”. ¡Hay que llegar a un acuerdo antes de que se generen los conflictos! Y ese antes es incluso antes de casarnos. Si estamos por encarar un proyecto en común y en lugar de ahorrar para comprar una casa, o para alquilar aunque sea para una habitación yo me gasto el dinero en salir de juerga con mis amigos, lo más probable es que después de casado ese comportamiento continúe. Los fondos de la familia son de la familia, no de cada uno de los cónyuges. Especialmente en el caso de que sea uno sólo de los cónyuges el que trabaje.

9. ¿Cómo será cuando discutamos?

¡Es importante discutir antes de casarnos! No estoy diciendo que haya que “buscar pelea” para ver cómo reacciona el otro. Pero es importante haber tenido al menos una “buena bronca” antes de casarnos. Si nos casamos sin haber discutido, al menos una vez, no vamos a saber si la otra persona es rencorosa, si sabe perdonar, si es violento, etc. Es importante saber que en el matrimonio los desacuerdos van a surgir casi indefectiblemente, y que para poder llegar a un acuerdo vamos a tener que saber ceder en nuestras posiciones y fundamentalmente escuchar y comprender al otro y su circunstancia.

10. ¿Y nuestra vida de oración?

Último, pero ¡Lo más importante!: “Familia que reza unida permanece unida”. El diálogo que establecemos con Dios tiene que ser central en nuestro noviazgo. Y tenemos que acostumbrarnos desde temprano a hacerlo juntos. ¡Toda la fuerza de nuestra unión provendrá de la oración cotidiana compartida! Cuanto más cerca estemos de Dios, más cerca estaremos el uno del otro. Y en la medida que conservemos la oración, la asistencia juntos a Misa, la participación plena en la vida de la Iglesia, nuestra casa se convertirá en esa “Iglesia Doméstica” donde nuestros hijos podrán desarrollar una fe fuerte y segura. ¡Y también nuestra relación crecerá fuerte y segura!
